

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL talkheart2heart.org/talk-opioids. The page features a navigation menu with the following items: Parenting, TALK Alcohol & Drugs, TALK Mental Health, and TALK Risky Behaviors. The main header includes the TalkHeart2Heart logo and a search bar. The main content area has a large image of a hand holding a pill, with the text "Talk Opioids" overlaid. Below this is a breadcrumb trail: Home > Talk Opioids. The primary content block is titled "Bite Me" and features a red pill with the words "STOP & THINK" embossed on it. The text reads: "That sounds alarming, but do you know what's really alarming? The opioid crisis in Nebraska. The misuse of and addiction to opioids (from prescription pain relievers to heroin) is growing. It's time to learn the facts so you can protect your family, friends, and community." Below this is a section titled "WHAT ARE OPIOIDS?" which explains that opioids are naturally found in the opium poppy plant and can be used for pain control, but also have addictive potential. It lists examples like Oxycodone, Hydrocodone, Methadone, Codeine, and morphine. At the bottom left, there is a section titled "TIPS TO PREVENT OPIOID ADDICTION" with a sub-section "Ask Questions" that encourages asking doctors questions when prescribed opioids.
